primary forest, virgin forest, native forest

30. October 2025

A forest that has been only slightly influenced by human activity and thus retains its natural tree species composition. In temperate regions, the term is also used for forests that have been used for timber extraction but have never been converted to agricultural land (historically old forest sites).