rotation period

30. October 2025

The period from the establishment of a stand to the completion of the final harvest of the trees. In a typical, systematically managed forestry operation, the rotation period is a management term that defines the time required for a tree species or stand to reach the planned production objective (management goal).