Runout zone

30. October 2025

The downslope area where moving material decelerates and comes to rest. In avalanches this is where the flow spreads, loses energy, and deposits snow. In rockfall it is where blocks stop or accumulate. Terrain shape, roughness, vegetation, and obstacles control runout distance. Management focuses on keeping people and infrastructure out of expected deposition areas and on using catchment features to contain debris.