Scale

30. October 2025

The spatial and temporal resolution and extent at which observations are made, models are built, or decisions are applied in forestry. It is characterized by grain (smallest unit in space or time, for example a tree, meter, hour, or day) and extent (total area or period considered, for example a stand, landscape, decade, or century)